We are residents of Peopleton, and are hugely concerned at suggestions that our village should be moved from its existing electoral position to Drakes Broughton. Drakes Broughton is a huge village, practically a town now. Peopleton has far more in common with the current, much smaller villages than being swallowed up under a huge village/small town such as Drakes Broughton. There does not seem to be any realistic reason for any changes to be made, indeed the suggestion that it will "even up" the electorate is frankly bizarre, as anyone who can add up will see..... There is an ulterior reason behind what's being proposed. Perhaps those that seek to change will consider telling those who will be impacted the real reasons behind this? In the meantime, Peopleton is a very small village, which has little in common with the villages/towns you are proposing to move us to, and much more in common with the smaller villages in the current Upton Snodsbury ward. In the absence of a better reason to move us, we wish to make a point, very strongly, to leave Peopleton as it is.
